COMPACT's service philosophy recognizes that the complex trauma its residents are experiencing is a result from the abuse and neglect they have suffered that has placed them in a stage of developmental delay where they struggle with the ability to self-regulate emotions, thoughts, and behaviors, especially during times of duress. The behaviors that prevent them from living in a family setting are viewed as a manifestation of a deeper emotional and psychological need that has been unmet or under-developed. COMPACT's view is that because the residents who reside at COMPACT were hurt and damaged through unhealthy parenting and attachment relationships, they will only heal from their trauma through promoting healthy and nurturing relationships and attachments. Through these healthy and nurturing relationships, the residents will learn to feel internally safe which will in turn allow them to begin to develop the means to self-regulate.

All caregivers are trained in the best available and current trauma-informed and attachment theory, practice, and application. All program services and treatment modalities are designed through the same lens with a consideration of each resident's history, cultural background, and linguistic competency. It is also the philosophy of COMPACT that every resident deserves and needs to be in a caring and loving family setting. To make this happen is the goal and mission of COMPACT and its residential programs.

COMPACT's Approach to Addressing Behavior

Caregivers teach rather than punish the resident with the goal of helping the resident develop acceptable behavior, self-control, and positive self-worth. Only caregivers who know the resident and have received required and necessary training are permitted to apply approved behavior management techniques. Staff will use no form of physical discipline, seclusion, exclusion, threats or intimidation, or any method that demeans or shames the resident.

- Each resident's service plan and calming plan includes approved behavior management techniques. Caregivers know the accepted behavior management method(s) for each resident.
- Interventions practiced to maintain a safe environment and to prevent the need for more restrictive interventions may include, but are not limited to, the use of natural consequences, gentle and frequent reminders, verbal limit setting, redirection, guiding and directing, offering the resident choices, encouraging the resident to ask for a compromise, sharing power, offering the resident an opportunity to learn appropriate behaviors through practice, temporary voluntary removal from the situation to give the resident an opportunity to self-regulate, removal from the group, sensory interventions, and restitution.
- Positive reinforcement and re-afferent practice help the resident identify and internalize appropriate and acceptable behaviors (i.e. verbal or physical re-do, verbal approval of behavior, praise, special one to one time with caregiver, extra electronic/free time, off-site activities, and additional privileges). Caregivers nurture positive behavior, provide sensory stimulation, and meet the resident's needs.
- To ensure that the policy and procedures listed above are followed, caregivers at COMPACT are trained in and employ the concepts and principles of Trust Based Relational Intervention®, (TBRI®), a trauma informed and evidence-based program for helping residents suffering from trauma heal and begin developmental growth emotionally, cognitively, and physically. The program is an attachment theory model. Continual training on the program's concepts, principles, and applications of TBRI occur throughout each calendar year for all caregivers providing direct supervision and care for the residents who reside at COMPACT.
- Staff will attend monthly training sessions to learn, review, and practice approved behavior management techniques. Administration has the right to require additional trainings for employees.

In TBRI, the IDEAL approach is used:

- Immediate—Respond as soon as possible.

- Direct—Get on eye level, face to face, when addressing the resident.
 - Always at the core of what we do is to let the resident know that he/she is precious.
- Efficient—Use the least amount of firmness and the fewest number of words to make the point with the resident.
- Action-Based—Actively redirect the resident to make choices and use re-do's.
 - Remember, a re-do is not punishment. A re-do gives the resident a motor memory for the good behavior, which enables him to more likely go down that path of good behavior again.
- Leveled at the behavior, not the resident—Fault the resident's behavior, not the resident.
 - The goal is not to punish, but to correct and reconnect with the resident.

TBRI Goals for Houseparent:

- I want the behavior changed.
- I want the resident to be connected to me more than he was before.
- I want the resident to be content (feel safe).

Sensory Integration Interventions

Sensory integration interventions are an essential part of the residential program at COMPACT Family Services. Sensory integration is often dysfunctional in residents who have experienced trauma. They sometimes have difficulty functioning effectively in daily life because of an inability to efficiently process information received through the senses. Sensory integration interventions have proven to help regulate a resident's brain chemistry so that they feel empowered to make better choices. Caregivers who are trained to execute sensory integration interventions are strongly encouraged to offer them to a resident if he/she exhibits signs of sensory processing difficulties.

- Approved sensory integration interventions include but are not limited to:
 - Weighted Blankets—with approval and/or prescription from an Occupational Therapist or Primary Care Physician
 - Chewing Gum
 - Chewing gum has been proven to improve focus, concentration and alertness, and stress management due to the proprioceptive input provided by deep pressure.
 - Self-Administration of Joint Compressions (i.e. pushing against walls, doing jumping jacks, push-ups or jumping on a trampoline)
 - Aromatherapy
 - Each home is equipped with an essential oil diffuser and assorted essential oils used for calming or energizing effects
 - Fidgets
 - Noise-Cancelling Headphones
 - Sensory Games (i.e. Weather Report, Pillow Sandwich, etc.)
- Caregivers may offer physical sensory integration interventions to a resident and can only proceed with the resident's consent. Forcing a resident to engage in physical sensory integration interventions is prohibited.

Calming Plans

Calming Plans nurture the senses and are utilized to help a child de-escalate when they feel afraid or out of control. Calming Plans are created by the resident with input and approval of the Case Manager and Houseparent. Every adult that provides care to the resident is aware of the plan and is instructed to utilize the techniques provided when a child begins to escalate.

Calming Plans are part of the behavior support and management plan tailored to each resident's individual de-escalation techniques. Calming Plans are created to provide a safe and appropriate way to calm emotions and are designed to engage all the senses. Calming Plans are the first line of defense when a resident begins to escalate. Calming Plans are updated quarterly with each Service Plan. Signatures are required by the Houseparent and resident stating they understand the plan.

Program Capacity

COMPACT Family Services

COMPACT Family Services has the capacity to designate up to six (6) of our residential cottages as QRTP cottages. Each cottage will hold up to five (5) QRTP placements for a total capacity of up to 30 QRTP placements per day on our Hillcrest campus.

All caregivers are trained in the best available and current trauma-informed and attachment theory, practice, and application. All program services and treatment modalities are designed through the same lens with a consideration of each resident's history, cultural background, and linguistic competency.
