Down Syndrome— from the parents' heart

October is Down Syndrome Awareness Month. Parents, Chaonna Warren and Arthur Jordan, give insight into their family's life and share encouragement to other parents.

"There is never a dull moment!" Ms. Warren shares about life with her son, Arenus Jordan. "A typical day with this three year old is full of energy. He is very busy. You have to watch him at all times! He is also very pleasant. Arenus is just like one of the other children and we do not treat him any differently."

When asked about the relationship between Arenus and his siblings, Ms. Warren shared the following. "From one of his older sibling's perspective, you learn to be patient and more protective. It also makes you aware of other's feelings and how you treat others that are so-called different."

For the parent who has been given the news that they are expecting a child with down syndrome, both mom and dad gives the following advice:

- Do not be discouraged.
- Research as much as you can.
- Join some of the Down Syndrome Awareness pages on social media and things of that sort. All of this is very helpful and enlightening.
- Trust the process because all children are different.
- Fathers be involved, supportive, and loving. Get inspiration from other fathers.

Stacey Schratz, RN Supervisor, highlights staff's community service.

Shelley Barnes is in the Northeast Arkansas Nurse's Honor Guard. The Nurse Honor Guard attends nurses funerals to honor them. Shelley has not been able to participate in a funeral yet but she is active in the group.

Sandra Crome took a week off this summer and sold fireworks with her husband who is a police officer along with 5 other police officers and their families in her hometown. The proceeds go to Shop with a Cop. Proceeds also help with Prom: dresses, tuxedos, and tickets for families without the ability to pay.

One staff, who wishes to remain anonymous, volunteers for an organization called CHEF (Community Health Educations Foundation). The money raised goes to Automatic Electronic Defibrillators (AED). Previously, CHEF was able to give an AED to Jonesboro HDC and that has helped to save lives there.

Hannah Raines and Leann Eddington also were United Cerebral Palsy (UCP) VIPs at the annual telethon. The telethon raised money for UCP kids and other kids in the northeast area. They answered calls and were on television representing DHS.

AUSUM 2023

On Saturday, September 30, 2023, Joe Winford and Sabrena Harris, were speakers at the AUSUM 2023 Conference at the Benton Events Center in Benton, Arkansas. Joe and Sabrena provided a wealth of information regarding the Intake and Referral process, CES Waiver, DD services, and PASSE opportunities. The audience were engaged and asked several questions to give them a better understanding on the eligibility process for services.

The conference was facilitated by the Tyler Dannaway Foundation, created in 2018 in memory of Tyler Dannaway. Tyler was autistic, preverbal and had apraxia when he died at the age of eight from flu complications. His lack of communication skills, however, did not prevent him from making friends that loved him dearly. Tyler's attitude of never giving up and always caring for others stood as a shining example to everyone he met. Tyler's parents created the Foundation to fulfill Tyler's dream of becoming a doctor to help other kids with autism. The Foundation helps preserve Tyler's profound impact on people and enhances the quality of life for families affected by autism.

For more information regarding the foundation visit their website www.tylerdannawayfoundation.org. You may also find them on Facebook under Tyler Dannaway Foundation.
